

the program

Our after school program exposes children and adults to dance, music, drumming, theater, gardening, cooking, languages, visual arts, and much more.

At our center in Fort Greene, Brooklyn, in a creative vibrant setting, children explore, learn and interact by finding new ways to express themselves. Trilok Fusion Arts is dedicated to being a gateway to sights and sounds from around the world.

Our highly qualified teachers are artists in their respective fields and come from all around the world, carrying a special enriching experience for your child. Each teacher is dedicated to sharing the love they have for their craft.

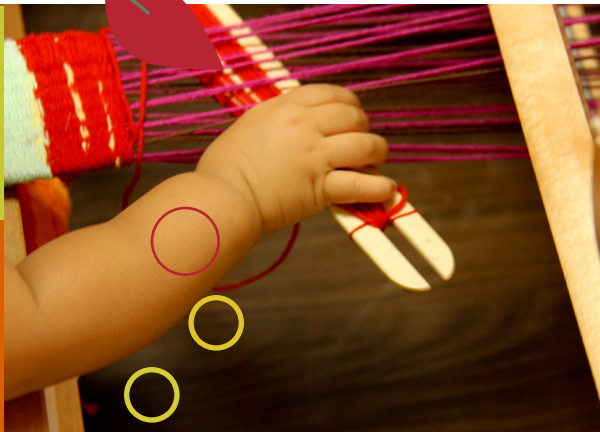

Our director Sudha Seetharaman is an Indian classical dancer by training and believes in the transformative universal nature of the arts. This is the spirit our programs embody bringing a passion for exploration, learning and discovery.

after-school courses

COOKING This is a class where children will learn about the basics of cooking. We will prepare new and simple dishes that as a team will be fun to do and repeat at home. We will explore the importance of writing recipes and getting creative with cooking. We will cook authentic dishes and new impromptu creations. We will also learn about food we buy from the neighborhood, and grow in our very own garden.

MUSIC (INDIAN CLASSICAL VOICE, VIOLIN, GUITAR, AFRICAN DRUMMING, PIANO) Children will work with musicians to learn the basics and beginner techniques of their chosen musical instrument or performance style. Children will be learning to play short pieces of music by the end of the class. Learning an instrument teaches children the value of practice and dedication, and builds self-esteem through skills development.
